

LOSS PREVENTION & VIDEO SECURITY SYSTEMS

Most surveillance systems are used to provide evidence of what happened during a critical event – after that event has happened. Some surveillance systems are used to trigger real-time alerts when an event may be happening. But very few surveillance and security systems are used to prevent events from happening in the first place.

ReTel's Proactive Surveillance Video Auditing (SVA) solutions change that. They use the surveillance assets you already have to reveal key information that lets businesses and enterprises run better and more securely. Unlike traditional surveillance applications that are reactive to unwanted events, ReTel SVA helps prevent these events from happening in the first place.

Most importantly, ReTel SVA uses a unique combination of advanced technology seamlessly blended with a trained, audited workforce of video auditors. This allows ReTel

SVA to mix the power of human perception and understanding with the scalability and cost advantages of technology to deliver a truly unique suite of services that solves many of the biggest challenges facing businesses and security stakeholders.

TecPro utilizes Mobotix cameras on the majority of installations because of their high quality and durability. Mobotix cameras are extremely robust because they are full digital and have no moving parts, which minimizes their possibility of failure. They have been installed in Panama, Alaska, Europe, Asia and Antarctica. The newest Mobotix product, the Q24, is a hemispheric camera that affords the ability to monitor an entire room with only one camera for total situational awareness.
